Restaurant Management Group Names Two Top General Managers for Each Restaurant Brand

KINGSPORT, TN. – Restaurant Management Group (RMG) named two local employees as its General Managers of the Year for the Hardee's® and Little Caesars® Pizza restaurants the company operates across eight states.

Lorri Rednour was named the company's Hardee's general manager of the year. She manages the company's restaurant in Rogersville and has won the award for the third year in a row. She was selected from among the company's 42 Hardee's restaurants.

The company named Norton Little Caesars Manager George Tate as its General Manager of the Year from among the company's 33 Little Caesars restaurants.

In addition to the general manager awards, both Rednour and Tate also manage restaurants which earned the company's Signature of Excellence award.

Rednour and Tate received the top awards based on a number of factors including guest comments, financial controls and employee retention. The Signature of Excellence award is given annually based on a number of factors that include customer service, employee retention and overall operations excellence.

Rednour has worked with RMG for nine years. She has worked with Hardee's for more than 25 years. She lives in Morristown and in her spare time enjoys working in her flower garden and watching TV.

Tate has managed the store in Norton for nearly three years. Tate resides in Kingsport with his wife and five children and enjoys playing with his children in his free time.

RMG owns and operates Hardee's restaurants in and around the Tri-Cities region of Virginia and Tennessee as well as in West Virginia, Ohio and Pennsylvania. RMG also owns and operates Little Caesars locations in the Tri-Cities region, North Carolina, Georgia and Florida.

RMG is based here. To learn more about RMG, visit www.rmgregaurants.com.
